What is a Motor Floater add-on

Our Motor Floater add-on allows you to insure your two-wheelers and private cars under one policy so that you can have just one renewal date after 12 months

Why should you choose a Motor Floater policy?

One set of insurance policy document to keep track of

Take the stress out of shopping for multiple policies each year

Pool family member's vehicles in

Set individual sub-limits/IDV for each vehicle in the policy

How does it work?

The total premium is calculated by applying the appropriate rate against the individual Sum Insured.

With every claim, the total Sum Insured of the policy reduces.

Total SI is the sum of all individual vehicle IDVs.

The sub-limit of each insured vehicle depends on individual IDV.

The policy start date for vehicles is defined separately, as per the expiry of existing OD cover.

Midterm inclusion of vehicles can be done by paying a pro-rata premium for that individual vehicle.

Assess your needs: Find out what coverage you need. Consider if you want protection for third-party liabilities, own damage, or both.

Compare plans: Look at different policies from multiple insurers. Compare coverage, premiums, and benefits.

Check coverage: Make sure your policy has a robust coverage against various risks.

Read the fine print: Understand the policy's terms, conditions, and exclusions, if any. Look out for any limits or deductibles.

Check the claims process: Make sure the claim process is straightforward and easy.

How to Effectively Compare Bike Insurance Premium?

Comparing bike insurance premiums is essential to finding the optimum coverage for your needs at the most affordable price.

Premium break-up

It provides a detailed view of how your bike insurance premium is divided among various components, such as coverage, taxes, and add-ons.

Own damage premium

Find the break up of your own damage premium covering your bike. The own damage premium is the cost you pay to cover the repair or replacement of your bike if damaged due to accidents, vandalism or natural disasters.

Third-party premium

Third-party premium is the cost you pay towards your policy for availing third-party legal liability coverage.

Personal accident premium

It's the premium you pay to obtain personal accident coverage, which provides you with a financial cushion in case you suffer an injury while riding your bike.

Add-on premium

Find out the premium breakup for your chosen add-ons in the policy. Add-ons offer an extra layer of protection on top of your base policy.

Why is bike insurance necessary?

Bike insurance is necessary for several reasons. The Motor Vehicles Act in India makes it mandatory for every bike owner to have at least a third-party insurance policy. The penalty for not having bike insurance is Rs 2000 or imprisonment for up to three years.

Also, having a bike insurance plan helps you cover the costs incurred on repairing or replacing your bike due to various risks, natural or man-made. It gives you peace of mind as you know you are financially and legally protected.

ICICI Lombard two-wheeler insurance policy add-on benefits^G

Here are some add-ons you can add to your two-wheeler insurance policy from ICICI Lombard, along with their benefits:

Roadside assistance cover

Stay ahead of unexpected breakdowns or accidents with our roadside assistance cover. Whether your two-wheeler experiences a flat tyre, needs a battery jump-start, requires towing, or minor repairs, this add-on has you covered. It also includes support for hotel stays and cab rides, ensuring you're never stranded.

Zero depreciation cover

This add-on ensures you get the total claim amount without an depreciation of your bike's parts. Usually, when you make a claim, the company deducts a certain percentage of the claim amount based on the depreciation of the bike's parts, which reduces the payout. However, with a zero depreciation cover in bike, you get the entire cost of replacing damaged parts without factoring in depreciation.

That said, this add-on applies only if your claim is for loss or damage to the vehicle. It does not cover claims for total loss or constructive total loss of the bike.

How to buy two-wheeler insurance online?

Purchasing two-wheeler insurance online is a relatively easy process. All you need to do is:

- 1 Enter here all the necessary details like your mobile no, email ID, bike registration number, registration year etc.

- 3 Customise the plan by editing your coverage, selecting add-ons, deductibles, etc

- 4 Pay premium through net banking, debit/credit cards, UPI, etc

- 5 You get the policy soft copy over email

What is NCB in bike insurance?

NCB is the acronym for No Claim Bonus. It is a reward your insurer offers you for not making any claims during the policy period. Each claim-free year allows you to earn a discount on the premium for the next policy renewal. This helps bring down your bike insurance's cost.

What is IDV in bike insurance?

IDV, or insured declared value in bike insurance, is the maximum amount your insurer will pay if your bike is stolen or completely damaged beyond repair. It is your bike's current market value, excluding depreciation. In simple terms, it's the amount you will get if your bike is lost or destroyed.

What impacts the insured's declared value (IDV)?

Several factors impact the bike's IDV, including:

Bike's age: As your bike gets older, its value depreciates. The older the bike, the lower its IDV.

Bike's make and model: Premium bikes or models with higher market demand typically have a higher IDV than regular bikes.

Depreciation: Your bike's value depreciates yearly based on a standard depreciation rate. The older the bike, the higher the depreciation, which lowers the IDV.

What is zero depreciation in bike insurance?

You might know that at the time of settling your claim for damages to y insurance company deducts the depreciation value on your bike or scooter's parts. The zero depreciation add-on offsets such depreciation at the time of a claim. This add-on is available at nominal extra premium.

Bike insurance price for different wheelers

Bike insurance plans don't have a fixed price. They depend on various factors, including coverage amount and the engine's cubic capacity. Also, in the case of comprehensive coverage, several other factors, like the bike's make and model, claims history, location, etc., play a vital role. Therefore, it's difficult to predict the exact cost of a comprehensive policy. That said, the cost of a third-party insurance plan is uniform and depends on the bike's cubic capacity. The table shows the price of third-party bike insurance plans for FY 22-23 for different bikes.

Bike's cubic capacity	Third-party insurance policy price
Less than 75 CC	₹538

About vehicle insurance

Vehicle insurance or motor insurance is meant for cars, two wheelers and other road vehicles. A motor package policy protects the insured vehicle against the damages caused due to accidents and natural disasters.

In addition to the own vehicle damage, motor vehicle insurance also provides the mandatory coverage for third-party liabilities.

Simply put, a comprehensive vehicle insurance allows for worry-free drives by curbing your vehicle repair expenses and helping you adhere to the law when on road.

Types of vehicle insurance coverage in India

Comprehensive motor insurance

A comprehensive vehicle insurance policy provides coverage against the third-party legal liabilities as well as the losses or damages to the insured vehicle during an accident or mishap. It covers the vehicle against natural and man-made disasters, including road accidents, fire, theft, earthquake, storm, flood etc.

Recommended for: Vehicle owners who want all-rounder protection

Standalone OD cover

Introduced by the IRDAI, the standalone Own Damage (OD) cover policies allow the vehicle owners to get coverage against the losses or damages caused to their vehicle due to natural or man-made disasters. This type of policy can be purchased by those who already have a third-party cover from a different or the same insurer.

Recommended for: Vehicle owners who want all-rounder protection for their vehicle.

Third-party motor insurance

Third-party motor insurance is mandatory in India as per the law. It protects the policyholder against legal liabilities arising due to an accident involving his/her vehicle. It means that in case an insured vehicle causes bodily injuries, death or property damage to a third-party, the insurer will take care of the legal liability.

Recommended for: As this doesn't cover the vehicle itself, only third party cover is not recommended for any vehicle. Even if you hardly take your vehicle out on the road, there's still risk of theft and parking damages. If you choose this type of policy, you'll have to pay for any damages to your vehicle yourself.
